A special thanks

Before I start this, I'd like to thank Erin Hunter (Yes, all four of them) for writing the Warriors series because it is absolutely amazing. Also thanks to my friend who introduced me to Warriors. I really want to say that person's name but said person probably doesn't even use Wattpad and I don't want to put said person's life in ABSOLUTE DANGER HELP ME THE ZERG ARE COMING OH NOOOOOOoooooooooooooooo..... Oh well thank you also to everyone who reads this book and votes and whatnot. Icestar out, enjoy! ;)

Your Own Character

[image]

I would start with my main original character, or oc, for the fanfic. The character who's pov (point of view) is first, or your favorite character, or the character that has the most chapters in their pov. You can choose. Remember this is only a guide, you don't have to do exactly what I say.

I started with making my character, chose it's gender, named him, chose his rank, chose his clan, chose his family members, then described his physical appearance. Here's how it would go in my character notebook thing:

Bio: 1 Page: 1 Icestar Page: 1
Icekit , Icepaw , Iceflame , Icestar .
ThunderClan
Father: Rainstorm
Moth er: Leafpelt
Brother: Lakeheart
Sister: Grasstail
Mate: Hailshine
Daughters: Snowypelt & Voleclaw
Apprentices: Moonshadow & Lionfang
Mentor: Thistlepelt
Deputy: Redfeather
Medicicine cat: Ashfoot
White tabby tom, light gray stripes. Scar on left eye, across muzzle, and along flank. Left ear is torn. Bright, clear, icy, blue eyes.

If you're wondering why it says "Page: 1" twice, the first one is the number of pages for that bio (character description), and the second one is the number of pages so far in the notebook itself. I make everything look nice I can't help it ;). I put down the names the character has had so far, but not future names. I only put deputy and medicine cat lists for leaders. After that, I just go down the list, making bios about the other cats listed In the first one, and then branch off from there. It can be boring and unmotivational, but I like to do it that way.

Your character is going to need a personality, as well. But I'll get to that in a different part. For now, please be patient I will update this as much as I can. (Tuesday 7/3/17 23:01)

Character Generator

[image]

So here is your basic warrior character generator that you've probably seen on like every single warrior book on Wattpad ever. It will tell you the warrior name but that is only if they are warriors. If they are kits or apprentices, they will have regular names but the name you get here will be their warrior name, when they get one. You don't have to follow this exactly, this is only a guide. But anyways, here ya go. Pick a number 1-150 for the first name, 1-50 for the second, 1-16 for pelt colour, 1-7 for eye colour, 1-12 for age, 1-3 for fur length, 1-3 for tail length, and choose around 7 numbers 1-36 for personality. You can use these for your characters in your fanfic.

Extra Information

[image]

This page is about extra stuff that might give your story some more realistic features.

Times:

You want to mention what time it is, moonhigh, sunhigh, full moon, greenleaf, etc.
Sundown = evening
Moonhigh = midnight (not the badger XD)
Sunhigh = noon.
One moon = one month. Greenleaf = summer. Newleaf = spring. Leafbare = winter. Leaf-fall = autumn/fall.

Every half moon, medicine cats visit Moonpool/Moonstone/ Special place that moon hits something and shines brighter at night to speak with StarClan. If anyone can tell me why, thumbs up! I know why lol.

Every full moon, a gathering is held. All leaders, deputies, and chosen cats attend, and the leaders discuss news, prophecies, territories, etc. There is a night long truce on this day.

Age:

Kits don't open there eyes until like, 2 weeks. And when they do, they are always blueish gray, and they change over time. Don't name kits after eye color.

Also, same thing with actions. Kits just sit around getting fat for awhile, they don't do much XD. If one of the parents was fast, and they think the kit might be fast as well, they might name it Swiftkit or something. But the kits are almost always named after pelt color.

Kits start apprentice training at 6 moons. They go on border patrols, help out med cat, help elders, all that good stuff. When they're around 12-16 moons, they get their warrior name. At around 120 moons (10 years), they can become elders, which, for a cat who survived who survived that long in a wild forest, the elder rank is definitely deserved.

Eyes:

Not every cat has blue eyes! Blue eyes are pretty uncommon, actually. The cat usually has to have a lot of white on it, or have ojoz azules, or be Siamese, or tonkanese, or whatever the heck it is lol, or have some kind of gene mutation, like Hawkfrost, with his, "icy blue eyes." Yes, Hawkfrost had a gene mutation. Or the cat might have "odd eyes." Different colour eyes, basically. Cats always have an 80% chance of being deaf on the side of the blue eye, or both ears, if both eyes are blue.

Pelt:

Lets say an all white cat mated with a cat that had like 50% white on it. The kits usually would have some amount of white in between that.

Males can not be calico or tortoiseshell. Calico is black, white, and orangeish. Tortoiseshell is red, orangeish, and black usually. They are both carried on the X gene. Females have XX, and males have XY. So, for some reason they can't go on the one X that males do have, so when you do see a calico or tortoiseshell male, it has XXY, and can't have kits. Sorry if I just bored you to death.

Name:

I mentioned the first name before, so let's discuss second names now. Its reflective off of the cat. Storm = unexpected actions and dangerous. Claw = good fighter. Whisker/Nose = good hunter etc. You don't want to have every cat be "claw," or, "pelt". It gets boring. And of course, what I just said about what the names above mean, you can interpret then in whatever way you want. It's not my book. I'm just giving ideas.

Rank:

Kit: 1-6 moons (unless serious injury occurs, hello Crookedstar). They mostly just play around and listen to elder tales. If Brokenstar is present, they go into battle xD (No one is laughing with me.....)

Apprentice: 7-15 moons (unless serious injury occurs, hello Cinderpelt). They fetch moss for beds, take elders ticks and fleas off with mouse bile, fetch herbs for the medicine cat, go on border/ hunting patrols, and might go into battle.

Warrior: 13-60 moons. Defends the camp, goes on border/ hunting patrols, and goes into battle.

Senior warrior: 61-119 moons. See, I don't think the Erins set a moonframe for senior warriors, I think they just made old warriors senior. I like to set a timeframe, though. Senior warriors are just warriors that the leader takes advice from.

Deputy: 13-120 moons. Has to have had one apprentice to be deputy. I like having deputies only senior warriors, but you can do whatever you want. It's chosen by leader. Is just a warrior but organizes patrols and substitutes for leader at gatherings if leader is unable to go. Dies if Tiggerclaw isn't a deputy yet. If leader is on a journey to somewhere (hello SkyClan) (hello Firestar) then deputy takes leadership until Firestar I mean leader gets back XD. Takes over as leader when leader dies. If dies, a new one must be chosen by sundown. Goes into battle.

Leader: 13+ moons. For some reason always gets the most important prophecies even though that's for the medicine cat. Overrules deputy and can disagree with the patrols set up by deputy. Can organize patrols. Leads clan into battle. Speaks for clans at gatherings.

Medicine cat: 13+ moons. Recieves prophecies, omens, visions, StarClan stuff. Heals clan from sickness and injury. Goes to moonplace every half moon. Goes into battle to heal only (unless self defense). Accompinies deputies on journey to moonplace so deputy can become leader.

Personality

[image]

Your character can't be a rock the whole time. Unless it's a fanfiction about Rock. Then it's ok. You need a personality. Is your cat outgoing and adventurous, curious, shy, or easy going? There are tons of personality traits, and they develop over time. Maybe your cat is shy, then meets someone who goes with the flow, and now, 20 moons of being that cat's best friend, your cat is a little more relaxed and even possibly assertive. But external affairs (my way of trying to say physical actions and relationships and whatnot really smart) can also lead to negative development, as well. Maybe a certain cat is very kind to everyone, then becomes friends with a rude cat. That certain cat might also throw some insults at cats here and there and be a little rude now. Your cats need to develop their personalities over time, and not just always be one thing. Maybe one cat was happy-go-lucky, then something tragic happened and one of their loves ones was drowned by someone. The cat might be distrustful now and also hydrophobic (afraid of water). Ok I feel like I should add something here haha but Idk. You get the point, right? Aaaand next chapter...

Features/Disabilities

[image]

The title is a lite self-explanatory, I think. The features of your cat. Scars, torn ears, twisted paws/tails, broken jaw, broken leg, missing an eye, all this stuff. Most cats don't have torn ears or scars, unless they've been warriors for a while and have fought a lot. But there is occasionally a fox/badger/dog attack that may permanently wound any cat.
Try not to make every cat have scars or something. Or disabilities, like being deaf, blind, crippled, etc.
Deaf cats usually have blue eyes, if they are born deaf. If they have blue eyes, they have an 80% chance to be deaf on the side of the blue eye (or both ears, if both eyes are blue).
Disabilities aren't very common. Besides in that one generation when Cinderpelt died she was disabled and then after she died Jayfeather was born just moons afterwards blind and then Briarlight was disabled and holy cow the only disabled ones are the med cats... Umm.. Ok then. Some cats are born blind or deaf, though not often. Others have been hurt by monsters, predators, falling, other cats, nature, etc, and they may now be permanently disabled and/or just have a temporary broken bone. But take Cinderpelt or Crookedstar for example. They have been wounded permanently by something. Then take Snowkit or Jayfeather, Snowkit was deaf and Jayfeather was blind. Both were born that way.

A/N
That's all for this chapter (so far) and I hope you're enjoying my book it's my first one so please tell me how I'm doing so far and I'll try my best to keep up with the updates and all that thanks for the support (that I may or may not have) and whatnot but anyways, Icestar out, enjoy!

Clan Characteristics

[image]

Each clan has certain characteristics, of course. Even if you have made up clans. The cat's pelt usually depends on the biome it lives in. Same as it's body frame, claws, paws, fur, even it's sight and hearing. Erin Hunter made great examples of this.

WindClan
-Lithe and small so they are lighter and can run faster on the moorland.
-Usually bright pelts.
-Strong but small legs and paws for running and digging.

ThunderClan
-Bigger and broad shouldered for powerful attacks and strong bursts even with little to no space for battle.
-Tawny, ginger, or bracken coloured pelts to blend in with the forest.
-Strong sense of smell for tracking forest prey.

ShadowClan
-Moderate frame but sleek and thinner to stalk in the dark.
-Dark pelts to blend in with the pine forest shadows.
-Better eyesight for seeing in the dark.

RiverClan
-Big and broad shouldered fit for fighting.
-Usually darker coloured pelts.
-Long claws to catch fish.

SkyClan
-Moderate but muscular frame.
-Earth or sandy coloured pelts to blend in with the gorge and the earth.
-Powerful hind legs to leap up high and climb trees.

Tribe of Rushing Water

-Gigantic cave guards to protect and lithe prey catchers to feed.
-Earth or stone coloured pelts (usually covered in mud, anyways.) to blend in with the mountains.
-Great sense of patience, hearing, and sight for catching prey and detecting predators.

Of course these are just cannon examples you can do whatever the heck you want but this might be helpful. But you get the point. The cat's surroundings gives it it's characteristics. It may even affect personality. If a cat lived near a peaceful ocean with good weather it may be relaxed and welconing. Take River Ripple for example but before the park was destroyed. But, if a cat lives on bad weather and harsh surroundings, it may be distrustful and harsh.

ABRUPT ENDING BECAUSE I DON'T KNOW HOW TO END THIS CHAPTER!!!!
